Auctioneer.

Will be sold at auction on the premises on Saturday, the 11th July on a credit of one and two years, equal payments, bearing interest from the day of sale, bonds and approved security to be given, the farm of 206 acres, owned and occupied by Basil Loveless, at his death. It lies just within the north western limit of the District of Columbia, about five miles from the city, on the turnpile, which branches a half mile beyond the farm into the reads leading to Rockville, Brookville, and Coleville, Maryland. 120 acres are in wood, a great portion of it oak and cheatnut fit for fencing. There are several fine springs, and a rich bottom of 40 acres, adapted to mendo w, with a good mill-seat on Rock Creek. The rest is on the elevated plain which divides the waters of the Ottomae. A height not far from the road, eligible as a building site, commands a fine view of the surrounding country. The Sogar Loaf mountain, in Maryland, some 30 miles distant, is distinctly visible. The homestead on the road was used as a tavern, and, proyed profusible. The soil is well adapted to clever, is kind and easily improved. The place is recommanded to purchasers by its high and healthy situation, its neighborhood to one of the best markets in the Union, and its immunity from taxation, he taxes within the District and out of the city being little more than nominel. The sale will certainly be made at the time appointed, without bidding in by any of the heirs, none of whom are able to June 9—law10w

HOWELL'S Patent Tanning Machine.
The great saving of time and labor effected by no machine renders it one of the most valuable of nodern inventions, being of the utmost importance of those already engaged in the manufacture of leath-r, besides offering the greatest inducements to oth-ra for starting the business.

By this machine, which in its operation strictly by this machine, which in its operation strictly follows the principles of the old way, all kinds o hides and skins may be tanned, not only so as the produce a superior article of leather, but with a saving of seventy-five per cent. In time, and fifty per cent. In labor, besides great economy in bark of tanning material.

ving of seventy-five per cent. in time, and fifty per cent. In labor, besides great economy in bark or tanning material.

A tannery in which the improved method was adopted, would, by its savings alone, be attended with large profits, whilst a neighboring one where the old plan was pursued would be losing money. The invention, which has been awarded a gold medal by the American Institute, as being the most valuable improvement ever introduced into this branch of manufactures, has given the highest satis faction in the different States in which it is in use. In the opinion of practical men who have adopted the improvement, at the cost of about five hundred dollars an establishment can be started which will tan two thousand sides of sole leather, or four thousand calf skins per annum, at fifty per cent. less than the usual expense of manufacture. Wherea greater amount of business is required to be done, additional outlay, of course, will be necessary. By this machine sole leather can be thoroughly tanned in twenty to thirty days, upper leather in two weeks, and calfakins in from three to seven days. The subscribers offer for sale single and county rights for the above, and will afford the most liberal facilities to those purchasing State rights for the purpose of reselling to counties or individuals. A neat model of the machine, showing its action and construction, will, if required, be furnished gratis to all purchasers.

For further particulars, address (post paid) Bu-tion at the great national fair at Washington city. Persons at a distance who may be unable to be present at the fair, would do well to procure some friend at Washington, to attend and examine for them the great advantages of this improvement.

New BOOKS.—A Discourse of the Baconan Philosophy; by Samuel Tyler of the Maryland bar, p. p. 426: Frederick Mayland, 1846.

This is the only systematic development of the Baconian philosophy aver attempted. The author has anticipated Mr. Mell in the most important of his logical views, set forth in his system of logic, just reprinted in this country. Mr. Tyler had published these views in the Princeton Review long before Mr. Mills, is entitled to the credit of lirst propaulizating these views. The scope, however, of Mr. Tyler's book is entirely different from that of Mr. Mills, and embraces a much larger field. An outline of this book was published two years ago under the same title.

of the Revolution. By Alexander Graydon, edited by J. S. Littel; Philadelphia, Lindeay and Blakison." This is an interesting volume. Though Mr. Graydon says modestly that it is the record of a life passed mainly in Pennsylvania, we find in it many excellent sketches of the men and the events of our revolutionary times. The publication of such reminiscences—the contemporary history of that eventful era—is, upon every account, greatly to be desired. Though this book is entirely free from pretension, it presents a very considerable amount of interesting narrative and anecdote, and will throw, we think, new light upon the most glorious passage of our natural history. It is gotten up in a style highly creditable to the publishers.

To show with what certainty the Mexicans looked for victory, we give an extract from a communication from the commander of the corps of engineers to the minister of war prior to the arrival of Ampudia.

Upon the arrival of Gen. Ampudia, we shall then have, after leaving sufficient force in Matmoras, 3000 infantry, 10 guns and 1300 eavalry with which to cross the river. Our triumph is certain, and there is no danger of the enemy's being reimforced in time to save them from destruction. The force of the enemy was 5,000 men, but at present he has at the utmost 4,000 men, and among them the has at the utmost 4,000 men, and among them $5.0 artillery, with 22 pieces of flying artillery, the bislance infantry, without appiral, without union among themselves, and without any wash to fight. The efficers are good, but even among them there are many who merely came because their government ordered it. If no disturbances break out in the interior they will capitulate in less than (wenty days or be entirely destroyed.

General Arista's despatch to the minister of war, dated at Matamoras, April the 26th, contains the following peasages relative to the first cutbreak and defeat of Capt Thornton's company:

"The prisoners will be brought to Matamoras this day. They shall be treated according to the laws of war, until they can be sent to the interior. Your excellency may rest assured that my conduct towards these unfortunate beings, will prove to these usurpers that the Mexicans are liberally endowed with the feelings of humanity.

It is likely that Gen. Taylor will open his batteries on our city to-day. If he does, I shall in the same tanner reply to him; firing, however, only as many shots so may be necessary to sustain the national honor. This is not the kind of fighting I like, with the relief of humanity.

from the city of Mexico up to the 15th instant inclusive, and from Vera Cruz up to the time of her departure. We compile from the New Orleans papers the following summary of intelligence:

The United States steam frigate Mississippi arrived at Vera Cruz on the 18th, with the news of the battles of the 8th and 9th instant. Care was taken to keep it from the Mexicans, though it is thought the fact of their defeat might have leaked, and did leak, out.

The Mississippi and Falmouth had blockaded the port of Vera Cruz. Orders had been received from the city of Mexico, directing all Americans to leave Vera Cruz by the 24th inst. Mr. Diamond, the consul, was preparing to go on board of one of the United States vessels of war. It was generally thought that the American vessels left in port (the barque Louisiana, and the brig Helen McLeod) would be seized by the Mexicans.

The contractor of supplies for the American squadron had been forbidden by the Vera Cruz authorities to furnish them with more.

The Thetus was boarded off the harbor of Vera Cruz by the United States when the care of the party who had "entrenched themselves in the Correst" as they were surrounded by such an overwhelming force; and the names of the officers and men all placed in the columns.

eight Texans were killed and four taken prisoners. Quinters was the only man wounded, says the despatch, and he was shot with a rifle-ball in the left arm. The despatch says nothing about the number of Mexicans killed in the action.

On the 30th April, J. J. Schatzel, the American consul and other American consul and other American consul and other American cutzens protested against their expulsion from Matamoras by Gen. Ampudia, and their having been ordered to proceed to Victoria without time being allowed them to settle their afficient. Arista repilled, under date of 28th April, that the proceeding war not against the law of nations, as alleged by them, and that he could not remedy the decree, but that they may leave the country via Tampico, and give directions to their agents respecting their property, which had always been respected.

According to Gen. Arista's despatches, we see that the Mexican forces which crossed the river were 2,000 infantry and 1,200 cavalry, with 12 pieces of artillery; and Gen. Mejia remained at Matamoras with 1,007 men and 12 pieces of artillery to defend the city, should our troops attack it. Some reinforcements were afterwards received, which raised the whole Mexican forces to 4,300 men, viz: 3,000 infantry, and 1,300 cavalry.

We have carefully looked over our files of Mexican papers, and find nothing more of interest to add.

LEFT MY FARM last evening without my consent, and has not yet returned, my, negro man WiNDSOR. He is 26 years old, about five feet eight or nine inches high, quite black, full person, broad nose, thick lips, clum-y feet, has a scar on one of his hands, and I think also on one of his cheeks, but am not sure. He changes his dress so often that it is useless for me to attempt to describe it. He is a cunning, artful fellow, and when charged with anything mean assumes a very confident air as if he feels insulted. I offer a reward of $10, if apprehended in Prince George's county or the District of Columbia; if beyond that, of $20.
